She traveled to England, Germany, Switzerland and India to visit churches and schools, and maintained contact with Christians she met in those countries.

Violet visited the Navaho Indian reservation in New Mexico, and worked with missionaries there. After moving to Shawnee, at the age of 79, she became a student at St. Gregory College with the hopes of getting a teaching degree to teach on the reservation. She had a thirst for knowledge and an excitement for learning that kept her active and interested in the world around her.

Mrs. Page was very proud of her Native American heritage. She lived in a duplex at Tribal Housing property for several years. She maintained contact with her Potawatomi Indian tribal friends in Shawnee, OK, (and later the Family Festival) there each spring.

2001 General Council proves short and sweet

By GLORIA TROTTER

In a surprisingly brief and peaceful General Council meeting June 30, members of the Citizen Potawatomi Nation heard glowing financial reports on the tribe's enterprises while waiting patiently for results of the annual election.

They had a long time to wait.

While election results are usually announced at the Council meeting, everyone knew this year would be different. A record number of absentee ballots — 2,790 — meant the counting would take a lot longer than usual. Tribal members were told the results would be announced at the pow wow grounds that evening, probably around 7 p.m. or so.

But that time came and went, with periodic updates from the Election Committee that it would take a while longer. Finally, about 2 a.m., the few hardy souls left standing — mostly the candidates and their families — were summoned to the Long Room where the council was reconvened according to tribal law.

The landslide win by longtime Chairman John A. Barrett Jr. ended months of tension and tough campaigning by both sides, his and challenger Esther Lowden's. Barrett won in both the absentee and live vote, defeating Lowden 1,701 to 713.

Grievance Committee posts were won by John Rhodd, Kristie Sue Hall and Teresa Kay Vieux (see box for a breakdown of the vote). Only 500 tribal members voted last year.

Barrett, who won by more than 70 percent of the vote, and two of three newly-elected Grievance Committee members were sworn in about 2:30 a.m. by Bill Rice, chief justice of the tribe's Supreme Court. In a brief speech afterward, Barrett said he appreciated those who helped him and pledged to lead the tribe to best of his ability. He has been the elected chairman of the tribe since 1985.

But the outcome of the election was unknown when the council convened at 3 p.m. in the tribal bingo hall, and many observers expected a repeat of last year's lengthy council meeting with its many pointed questions. That didn't happen.

Barrett first called on First National Bank president Larry Briggs, who reported that the bank's $63.4 million in assets are up 12.5 percent. Deposits increased 15 percent to $57 million, capital increased 38 percent, and income increased 100 percent, he said. "We are the fastest growing bank in Shawnee," Briggs said.

Barrett added that there are eight tribally owned banks in the country now "and ours is the largest."

Tribal auditor Jeff Detwiler pointed out that the tribe chose to change auditing firms this year to "get a fresh look at the numbers." He said tribal revenues totalled $41,345,000, up eight percent. He credited the grant and contract writing office for much of that and said he is "very impressed with the overall condition of the tribe."

Detwiler noted that sales at the tribe's new FireLake Discount Foods totalled $4,300,000 through June 29, for the first two months of operation, 25 percent ahead of projections. Total construction costs for the store were listed at $9 million, with $3 in debt incurred at an average interest rate of 8.83 percent.

Tribal attorney Michael Minnis was not able to present such a glowing report. "We've lost cases in the U.S. Supreme Court, the 10th Circuit, even tribal court," he said. "The Supreme Court is anti-Indian as it's ever been — you could feel the heat." That case was a dispute with a contractor involving the roof of the bank when it was built. He also reported on the tribe's efforts to place the 86.94 "Belshe tract" and the 11,000-acre Knight property into trust, noting that those efforts are not being handled expeditiously in Washington.

Minnis also detailed the tribal court proceedings on the Business Committee's resolutions challenging the chairman's power to hire and fire and its attempt to end his salaried position and some benefits. Barrett challenged the committee's resolutions and won at the tribal District Court level. The case was appealed to the tribal Supreme Court, which had not yet ruled when this issue went to press.

Also during the Council, Barrett asked that any veterans present be sure to sign up for an honor guard the tribe wants to establish. He said 68 had already done so. "You need to register," he said, noting that "we want to put together a history" of Potawatomi veterans.

Vice Chairman Linda Capps announced winners of the annual Art Competition, and Barrett recognized and presented gifts to Mildred Houser and Patricia Vandegriff, both 90, as the eldest tribal members present; to Kate Reardon of Everett, Washington, for traveling farthest; and to his new granddaughter Kate Barrett, three months, as the youngest tribal member present. Kate is the daughter of Barrett's youngest son Jack and his wife Tiffany.

At the end of the meeting, Barrett twice asked for questions from tribal members but none were asked. The council was adjourned after about one hour.

The Citizen Potawatomi Nation is divided into different "Regional Offices" to help cover the extended membership across the nation. Originally labeled merely by region names, regional boundaries were established in late 1997 using the US Postal Service "3 digit" Zip code areas. Region '0' is generally considered Oklahoma while the other states that are not numbered currently do not have an official "Region" designator.

Hau bosho Chak

Ni je na ngom?

Are you ready for summer?

It's already here for us eh?

We had a good time at the Council meeting at the Museum of Natural Science here in Houston. Was great to see all of you there.

The fireflies are here again ... the butterflies too. Did you know that butterflies like bananas? Put a little bit on a plate and watch them as they come to feed. Isn't it good to know some things stay the same always?

Do you remember playing in the clover as a child there in Oklahoma? We used to make "bracelets" of the flowers. We used to get stung by the bees in that clover too. I remember my grandmother had a bottle of blue liquid she used in the laundry tubs to whiten the sheets and other things. That bottle had a cork in it. When we got stung we would go running to her whining and she would take that cork out of the "blueing" bottle and make a neat blue circle on the sting.

"Now go on and play" she would tell us. "You will be fine, only the good die young."

I have come to believe she was right about that ... as she was about many other things. I would sure like to talk to her now ... and to her father before her ... but they walked on years ago.

I tell you of these memories to get to this: we need to listen to those Elders who are with us now ... they do know by experience what some of us are still learning the hard way.

Trial and error works ... but it can be costly in so many ways we can't afford that we need to access all the wisdom we can muster.

Did the Chinese pilot taking our surveillance plane out of the air make you just a little uncomfortable? Does the balance of power in the Senate today make you appreciate what one person can do?

We have it easy folks ... our ancestors paid the price for us

... did all the real fighting and dying ... made all the major decisions about the moving and all the major sacrificing those moves entailed. They built a future for us — more importantly for our children and our grand children. We only have to nurture what we already have and pass it on.

This means we have an obligation not only to ourselves and the seven generations coming ... we owe a debt to the seven who preceded us as well, eh?

Enjoy the butterflies and the fireflies and remember that Mother Earth gives us everything. The clothing, the food, the shelter we enjoy, all come from Her. And the beauty we look at and sometimes don't even see before us is a gift from Her as well.

Do what you can to keep Her for the children. Do what you can to keep our Nation strong and intact. I shall.

First Place

WASHINGTON D.C.

By Vivian Crayton

There is no connection
in Washington DC
to Native America.
It is lost in the blankness
of white flag stripes
fighting the red,
of manicured gardens
killing the weeds.

Now this enlarged abdomen
whispers to my mother, carries my blood back to the earth through life to home, to Native America
repeating the songs
stored in my blood.

WITHIN OUR LOVE

By Marilyn Trask-Morton

I walk a careful line within our love.

I saw her again today.
Sunglasses in place to hide
the bruised heart and body.
Barely speaking "hello" above a whisper.

I dare not stand alone within our love.

I saw her from a distance moving quietly with the children.
The burns hidden under long sleeves
wearing her shame quietly.

I never speak the truth within our love.

She looks older today
with the scarf covering her hair.
Her face tear streaked
Insecure with her terror.

I feel inadequate within our love.

She and I are one.
The shock guides me to an escape
before the spirit of my soul diminishes into eternity.

I try to blot out the silence and anger that robbed me of respect.
I will not forget
lest my sensitive heart feel the torture again.

I grieve for the loss.
Years wasted.
Unproclaimed suffering and bitter devastation.
I am alone from necessity to become safe within my love.

Third Place

THE OLD ONE

By Dorothy Hicks

I sit by the campfire
What a wonderful sight,

The flames are dancing far
Into the night,
A legend is told by one of the old
How the tribe spent the winter cold
And half froze,

The tribe had little food,
What they caught on the run,

They used the bow and arrows
For they had no bullets or guns,

I look upon the gravestones,
And I can really see that 30
Was an old age and 21 it seems,

Life was hard and children
Didn't fit the scheme,

Three months, six months, seven years
And all along the way,

I could see the children dying
Falling by the way

The tribe was on the move
They had no time to pray,

The mother's tears were falling
The fathers cried along the way,
They couldn't keep from falling
As ice was slick that day,

Keep going was a command,
Of the day,
You wretched people it's your fault
That I'm here today,

To get you where you're going,
I've got to earn my pay,
So if you fall or die,
It's just another day,

The old one, had to stop,
to stop and catch his breath,

For tears were falling down his face,
As he told of the trail of death.

Pilot program helps elders find services

Finding appropriate services to help American Indian elders is not always a simple task. However, thanks to a new pilot program, the Eldercare Locator American Indian Outreach Initiative, finding services in Northern California and Oklahoma is a little easier. Two tribal organizations, the Blue Lake Rancheria Tribe and the Chickasaw Nation Title VI program are working with the Eldercare Locator to help Indian elders and their families locate needed services. The Eldercare Locator is a public service of the U.S. Administration on Aging administered by the National Association of Area Agencies on Aging.

Through this program, person looking for free information about services for elders in the test sites, Northern California and Oklahoma will get the information they need by calling 1-800-677-1116. Callers will be referred to appropriate Indian organizations for services for elders such as:

- Health care services
- Meals delivered at home
- House cleaning
- Transportation services
- Assistance with public benefits
- And, other resources that may be available in the elder's community.

If you need referrals for elder services in Northern California or Oklahoma, call the toll-free Eldercare Locator today at 1-800-677-1116.

Busy prosecutor has historic Potawatomi bloodlines

By Jean LaReau Miller

Oklahoma County Prosecutor Lou Keel is Assistant District Attorney, Supervisor of Drug Enforcement, Domestic Violence, Revocations, Misdemeanor and Sex Crimes Units in Oklahoma City. The job description sounds overwhelming; however, Keel is a zealous advocate for crime victims. That personal concern does not lighten the responsibility, it just becomes less consuming.

"For most of the 20 years that I have been an ADA, I have prosecuted child molestation cases and other sex crimes. Working with children in those situations ... those who really need a friend has its own reward, Keel said. It is believed that he has prosecuted more child molesters than anyone in Oklahoma.

Keel is one of two ADAs assigned to prosecute Terry Lynn Nichols for his involvement in the April 1995 bombing of the Alfred P. Murrah Building in Oklahoma City. A gag order has been issued that binds the prosecutors from commenting on the case.

Keel is enrolled on the Chickasaw tribal rolls. His great-grandfather, Billy D. Keel, sat on the last Chickasaw Legislature, disbanded by an act of the U.S. Congress in 1907. Billy's son, L.D. was Lou's grandfather, and L.D.'s son Earl is Lou's father. In addition to the surname Keel, others related by blood to the family on Chickasaw rolls are Walton and Newton.

The prosecutor's maternal bloodlines are Potawatomi through the families of Topinebee, Bertrand, Higbee and LaReau. As a leader of his people, Topinebee allied his forces with the great Shawnee leader Tecumseh in his efforts to stem the encroachment of European immigrants into the Northwest Territory. That alliance continued until Tecumseh's death in the Battle of Thames in Canada, October 5, 1813.

Keel's education was widespread and diverse, beginning with grade schools in Midwest City, Oklahoma; Columbus, Ohio; and across the Pacific Ocean to Tokyo, Japan. There he enrolled in the 5th grade with ambassadors' sons from local embassies at St. Mary's International School to "cipher tip" algebra and learn to speak the dead but still beautiful language, Latin. Instruction was administered under the no-nonsense direction of Canadian Jesuits.

When he returned to the United States, Keel attended high school in New York's mid-Hudson Valley at Cornwall where he would graduate. The scenic town is located in the shadow of Storm King, one of the Catskill Mountains, and the site of fictional character Rip Van Winkle's record-setting nap.

Keel began his college years in upstate New York at Cobleskill, where he wrestled and studied accounting. Later, he returned to Oklahoma and enrolled at Oklahoma City University, finishing his undergraduate study with a degree in journalism.

As an intern with the Daily Oklahoman, he soon realized that printer's ink was not in his veins. "I was back at OCU and in law school that September," Keel said. And there he found his niche.

Both Keel's maternal and paternal lines are etched with names of those public spirited, concerned with the well-being and rights of the people. Chickasaw and Potawatomi citizens should be pleased to know that another of their own is carrying on in this tradition.

CPN ANNUAL REPORTS

(The following annual reports are in addition to those printed in last month's issue.)

Indian Child Welfare Janet Draper, Director

The Indian Child Welfare Program monitors tribal court cases, state court cases, adoptions and subsidized adoptions. The ICW office also provides home-based services, foster care, prevention services, counseling, parenting skills, respite care and crisis intervention. Approximately 300 families receive one or more of these services on an annual basis. Currently there are 2,563 children age 18 or younger enrolled in the Citizen Potawatomi Nation within the State of Oklahoma, and 5,519 enrolled members across the United States. Children who are eligible for ICW services have generally been removed from their parents by a court of competent jurisdiction for abuse or neglect. These children are then placed in a foster care situation or into the care of a relative. According to the Child Welfare League of America, 12.5 out of every 1,000 Native American children are placed in substitute care, compared to 6.9 out of every 1,000 children from all races.

The Child Protection Specialist is required by law to investigate reports of child abuse and neglect on Trust or Restricted land (reservations). They assist families in making sure that the child is safe. The target population for services includes families in which there is a risk of child abuse or neglect or in which abuse or neglect is alleged to have occurred.

The Family Preservation Program, Title IV-B assists families with children in the home who are at risk of being removed from the home. The program offers parenting sessions, home-based services, court advocacy, case management, family crisis assistance and makes referrals to other agencies.

The Family Violence Program offers assistance to persons of any age that may find them in a volatile situation. This program supports the efforts of other community agencies such as the Unzner Center and Project Safe.

The Citizen Potawatomi Nation received a grant from the Office of Juvenile Justice and Delinquency Prevention, which supports and enhances tribal efforts for comprehensive delinquency prevention and control for Native American Youth. In the Soaring Eagles Program, juveniles from the ages of 6 to 18 will receive prevention and diversionary services with a focus on alcohol, drugs, gangs, and school success. All diversionary programs focus on preventing further penetration into the juvenile justice system.

The First Offenders Program is a 10-session program utilizing substance abuse education, juvenile justice system overview, "Speak Out" presentations, anger management groups and other topics to reduce recidivism among juvenile offenders.

BOOK REPORT

By Hyale Smith, Tribal Rolls Assistant

Title: The Complete How-To Book of Indiancraft

Author: W Ben Hunt

Publisher: Collier Books, Macmillan Publishing Company, 1973

I recently found a book that gives detailed instructions on "68 projects for authentic Indian articles from Teepee to Tom-tom." He writes with authority. Born in the latter part of the 19th Century, he became a self-taught expert on the crafts of the Plains and Woodland Indians.

Even though most of us will never have to rely on our hands and wits to survive in the woods, it is nice to learn the skills to be able to do it.

With the help of drawings that are reminiscent of old-time Sears catalogs, Hunt shows us how to build a shelter, fashion rustic furniture from tree stumps, and carve a flute for singing love songs. He also has chapters on making Indian clothing and jewelry, snowshoes, sleds and goggles, and cooking utensils for the kitchen.

No special tools or talents are needed for most of these projects. Whether you are an experienced craftsman, or just a beginner, you are sure to find something in this book that you can make with your own hands.

If you are interested in reading this book, you can check with your local library or bookstore. (The Tribal Library does not lend books; they are for on-site research only.)

Denise Lackey recognized in national publication

Deborah 'Denise' Lackey, director of the Title VI/Transportation/TRIAD Programs, was recently recognized in the International Who's Who of Professional Management guide.

Denise has been the director of the Title VI/Elders Health program since 1994 and took on the added responsibilities of transportation and TRIAD in 1998. The Title VI program was designed for elders of Native American descent to meet nutritional needs, enhance socialization, provide physical fitness and to encourage travel and recreation. She plays an important role in the elders' future by informing them about health insurance, Medicare, frauds and scams. Her goal is to stay with the Citizen Potawatomi Nation and continue to help the elders with additional educational programs and activities.

Lackey is a member of the following associations: Oklahoma Indian Council on Aging; National Association of Area Agencies on Aging; Dietary Managers Association; and National Title VI Grantees Association.

CPN ANNUAL REPORTS

CPN Housing Authority Bob Carlile, Director

The Citizen Potawatomi Nation Business Committee created the housing authority in 1995. This was the final year for the creation of Indian housing authorities before the new Indian housing act of 1996.

This new law, The Native American Housing Assistance and Self-Determination Act of 1996 (NAHASDA) was enacted on October 26, 1996. The act and the amendments to this act took effect on October 1, 1997.

NAHASDA requires HUD to make grants to Indian tribes to carry out affordable housing activities. The actual funding of this act will come in the form of a block grant.

The Citizen Potawatomi Nation Housing Authority is pursuing all avenues for providing housing assistance to eligible tribal and Native American families within the jurisdictional boundaries of the Citizen Potawatomi Nation.

The jurisdictional boundaries of the Citizen Potawatomi Nation Housing Authority are the previous reservation of the Citizen Potawatomi Nation, described as follows: North of the South Canadian River; South of the North Canadian River; West of the Seminole County line; and East of the Indian Meridian.

A survey was conducted to determine the housing needs of the Citizen Potawatomi Nation people. The housing plan that has been submitted identifies the different areas of need that were discovered by the survey. The areas of need and the progress being made towards meeting that need are summarized below.

Rental Program:

Currently we have one rental home program, the duplexes located on Father Murphy drive. We continue to maintain these existing units, designed for elderly residents, in an acceptable condition for occupancy. Our occupancy rate is 95% with an average move in/out turn around of 20 days; our account receivable ratio is 6% or less. We plan to construct 10 additional low-rent duplex units for the elderly to be named Father Murphy II.

We currently provide rental assistance to families or individuals that are students at a post high school facility (i.e. junior college, college, university, trade or vocational school). We have issued 180 rental assistance vouchers to these students for the past two semesters.

We currently are providing assistance for emergency housing services. We have recently purchased six duplex units on Nichols Street in Tecumseh.

Program Requirements

- Member of Citizen Potawatomi Nation
- Up to 80% median income
- Single person or families
- Compliance with all lease requirements
- 36 month maximum for payment assistance except for the elderly or disabled.

Home Ownership Program:

This component will assist families in maintaining home ownership by refinancing mortgages or becoming homeowners by providing grants to assist with down payments and/or closing cost in set amounts, so the families can qualify for a home mortgage loan.

We have assisted 64 families by providing the down payment assistance and/or closing costs to secure the mortgage financing for the purchase or development of single family homes.

We have utilized the HUD Section 184 loan program for Native American eligible borrowers in the service area of the Citizen Potawatomi Nation for 3 individuals.

We have now completed the HOME Program in which we provided 35 participants up to $36,250 each, in the form of a grant for a 30 year home loan, the main requirement is the participant had to own their own land on which they built the home.

We have purchased seventeen homes that have been resold to tribal members with up to a $20,000 grant.

Program Requirements

- Member of Citizen Potawatomi Nation
- Up to 80% of median income
- Ability to qualify for a home loan

Housing Rehabilitation Program

The goal is to initiate a rehabilitation program for the elderly and handicapped tribal homeowners in single-family units. We have rehabilitated 4 privately owned homes and plan to utilize the duplex units on Nichols street in a move in/out status to continue with 20 more homes for the coming year. We had, previous to this purchase of the duplex unit, nowhere for our participants to live while we worked on their homes. Now, we will be able to move them out of their home, complete the work, and move them back. This process will shorten the time of repair considerably and make it possible to assist more Citizen Potawatomi Nation members.

Program Requirements

- Member of Citizen Potawatomi Nation
- Up to 80% of median income
- Title to the housing unit to be rehabilitated for a period of ten years.

The Housing Authority and First National Bank and Trust Company have started a mortgage department within the tribal bank. This department processes and makes these loans. The loan is then serviced by the bank or is sold on the secondary market to Fannie Mae. We have developed a partnership with Fannie Mae and are now in a mentorship program to become a seller/servicer.

Each program has a separate application; please call the housing office at (405) 878-4819 or 8784696. Please visit the office that is currently located beneath the tribal museum on the north side for individual information for your circumstances. We will soon be moving to our new location at the Father Murphy Community Building.

The Mission Statement for the Citizen Potawatomi Nation Housing Authority is to provide low-income CITIZEN POTAWATOMINATION tribal members and other low-income Native American people with the opportunity for decent, safe and sanitary housing while building stronger, healthier communities and promoting economic independence for our clientele. This will include tribal members in our jurisdiction as well as outside our jurisdiction where tribal needs require our consideration.

Shepherd's Purse (capsella bursa-pastoris), is a member of the mustard family (Brassicaceae family). It sometimes is known as Shepherd's heart, Pickpocket, rattlepouches, rattleweed, or lady's purse.

A lover of wastegrounds, roadsides, and old fields, it flowers from mid spring to mid fall and is found throughout the United States. It grows to about 18" in height. It bears heart-shaped two celled seedpods that resemble the leather pouches once carried by shepherds. The base leaves are dandelion like while the spike like stem leaves are tipped with clusters of small white delicate flowers. Each tiny flower has 4 petals (which form a cross) and 6 stamens. This hardy annual is of European origin but is now naturalized around the world except in tropic climates.

Each seedpod contains many black pepper tasting tiny seeds, which can be collected, in late summer and early fall. They should be dried and ground to a pepper consistency. In the spring the base leaves can be eaten fresh. Later in the summer and fall the leaves are tough and bitter. The leaves can also be cooked like spinach.

Here's one for your natural emergency kit. It is outstanding for stopping all forms of bleeding, internally and externally quickly. Examples of this are bleeding in the digestive tract and bladder or from any organ.

Tea is brewed from every part of the plant but the root and is recommended as a general tonic. The tea drank or applied externally, is more effective chilled. The green leaves contain high concentration of vitamins. To make a tea, use the ratio of 1 teaspoon dry leaves to 1 cup of boiling water. Pioneers and Indians used the tea to wash painful bruises and wounds because of its antiseptic and coagulant properties. Tea compresses are made for cuts and wounds and soaking small cottonballs in the tea for nosebleeds can be used. The name "mothers' hearts" reminds us that this is a useful herb for gynecological conditions. A sip of hot tea infusion during labor stimulates uterine contractions and after delivery, it eases postpartum bleeding. Because of its diuretic properties, it is used to eliminate water retention. It also reduces blood pressure and is a good circulatory stimulant.

A variety of birds, including grouse and goldfinches eat the seeds. Chickens and cattle will eat the whole plant. The seeds are also reported to be toxic to mosquito larvae, which helps control mosquitoes.

CAUTION: Avoid the herb in pregnancy, except during labor, because it stimulates uterine contractions.

Bouzho Nicon, (Hello, my friends)

I hope all of you who came to the Festival had a good time. I had a ball and got to talk to a lot of new relatives. The family reunions were well attended and we dodged the heat for the last Saturday in June. We had the biggest Saturday powwow dance in Festival history and our dancers were showing their new skills. Our General Council was short but sweet, with virtually no rancor or ill feelings. I wish that could have been the way the entire election was conducted.

Wouldn't it be good for our Nation, over the long term, to demand an attitude of respect and civility of its political candidates? When elections leave permanent wounds, no one really wins. Look at what happened this year.

The election year started with an attempt by three members of the Business Committee, Hilton Melot, Gene Bruno, and J.P. Motley, to use their Business Committee positions to remove me from the administrative role I have played in the most progressive four years in our tribal history. The Tribal District Court ruled their attempt unconstitutional. The appeal to the Tribal Supreme Court is still pending.

In spite of the fact that I was re-elected with over 70% of the vote, an atmosphere of anger and distrust against Linda Capps and myself still poisons our meetings and will soon result in a less efficient tribal government. More action is coming in the Tribal Court because the grievance procedure has been abused by filing spurious grievances that are politically motivated.

On the good news side, we are about to start our most exciting and extensive cultural and tribal services expansion ever! With the expertise of Rhonda Butcher, Self Governance Director, and Lisa Kraft, Grants and Contracts Coordinator, we have received Federal Funding to build a new $1,000,000 Child Care Center, a new $1,200,000 Wellness and Senior Center, and a $1,300,000 Tourism and Cultural Center. Great things are coming! These projects will be the topic of future HowNiKan articles.

Thank you to all of you who helped and supported me in the recent election. I pledge to you, and to those who voted for my opponent, that I will do my very best to make our tribe what you want it to be.

THE CONSTITUTIONAL CHANGE IS COMING!

Megwetch,

John Barrett

This message is addressed to all our Tribal members who attended the festival and those who participated in competition and events. I was fortunate to be involved with several activities including checkers, dominoes, chess, basketball, archery, and volleyball. What a great time I enjoyed with family and friends during these events!

Congratulations to those of you who won prizes. Winning a prize is a good feeling of accomplishment; however, I sincerely hope you found that winning is not the most important aspect of participation. The joy of meeting new tribal members, visiting with friends and relatives, and learning more about our Potawatomi families is what should be rewarding. Many of you told me how pleased you are that your family members have become enthusiastic about our annual festival.

The added bonus is the contribution that the festival brings to our Council Meeting in terms of greater attendance. As a Business Committee member, it is my desire to continue to improve on the festival by encouraging more participation. This may mean the addition of new events. If you have an idea, please share those with our administration or our Business Committee members.

Speaking of learning more about Potawatomi families, I cease to be amazed at the knowledge I gain on a near-daily basis regarding people who are related to each other. It thrills me when I find out that two familiar acquaintances that I've known throughout the years from attending Regional Meetings and other events are actually sisters, brothers, or first cousins. I have made many of these discoveries this year. In fact, while compiling this message, I learned that one of my dear friends in Arizona is the sister to a tribal member who I have visited with on numerous occasions. The old cliché, "it's a small world," does not exclude our Potawatomi people.

As the Citizen Potawatomi Nation administration and Business Committee members are planning schedules for the upcoming Regional Meetings, we are revising the art competition rules. One change is the addition of a division for children. Prizes, instead of cash awards, will be presented to the winners. We are proud of the response to the art competition in recent years, and especially want to encourage artwork that depicts our Indian heritage. An Indian heritage theme is part of the judging criteria for entries during our 2001-2002 Regional Meetings. Please watch for the rules and age division changes for the art competition in our next HowNiKan issue.

The top three poetry winners were recognized during the general council meeting last month from 46 entries. That's pretty good for a first-year competition. The 2002 poetry contest will be judged during the month of May. A deadline of May 1 will allow those who win prizes to make plans to attend the general council meeting. Entries will be accepted throughout the year. You may address those to Dennette Bare who is our Public Information Director. May you have an enjoyable year preparing for a wide array of competitions for Festival 2002.
